

Rider Card

An Airbike rider card is, essentially, a license to participate in GARC events. It contains information such as a rider's name, date of birth, gender, riding style, and other important information.

The Card

In order to receive a rider card, a rider must pay a 200 KS fee, pass a GARC safety and regulations test, and participate in a qualifying race in order to determine certain details such as Rider type and Rider grade.

Rider Type

Each rider has a specific style of riding, mostly of which can be summed up in one word. However, those single words sometimes need explanation. A List of common rider types can be found below:

Cautious:	A Cautious rider is one who is very aware of the racetrack and the other riders. They take the effort to make sure that they ride in a safer manner
Calm:	A Very collected rider, often has traits of a cautious rider, but is more willing to take risks
Smooth:	Usually an endurance rider, they have an eye for a course and rarely deviate from the path of least resistance
Daring:	As it says, this type of rider is very daring, willing to try whatever methods they need to be competitive, while not necessarily interacting with other riders.
Determined:	Easily able to recover from obstacles and setbacks, a determined rider is willing to do what it takes to win

Rough:	A somewhat sloppy rider who is often clashing with other riders. They aren't particularly capable of being the best, but can cause some distress to other riders
Aggressive:	A Rider who will do literally anything within reason to win, even physically beating on other riders. Highly competitive and capable
Steady:	Very much like a Smooth rider, these are also capable of a level of consistency not seen by other rider types.
Insane:	A powder Keg. Nobody knows for sure exactly what this type of rider would do.

Rider Grade

A Rider Grade is a letter rating detailing the general level of skill a rider has. The closer to the beginning of the alphabet a rider has, the higher rating they have, and therefore the more skilled they are.

A	A Rider whose skill is mostly unmatched. Almost never lose, generally dominating any race they participate in.
B	A Rider of renown whom is capable of pulling off just about anything within reason. Wins most races they compete in.
C	A highly skilled rider whom is seen as a major force. Capable of winning and often seen in the top three.
D	A generally competitive rider who can compete and can consistently make it into the top five.
E	A Rider of some skill who can be competitive, but does not often win, or even make it to the top five.
F	A rider whom has some skill but is largely incapable of competing meaningfully.
G	A Mostly untested rider. They have the ability to ride but are not seen as particularly competitive.

Registration Number

A Rider's Registration number is the number they receive when they are completely entered into the NARC system. It is the identifying code which allows for more in-depth information on the rider to be found <sup>1)</sup>

The Registration number is made as follows
